Aldbrough Gas Storage facility starts leaching

Scottish and Southern Energy has today confirmed that it has received approval to begin 'leaching' the nine caverns that will be used to store gas at its Aldbrough Gas Storage Facility. The project, a joint venture between SSE Hornsea Limited (a subsidiary of Scottish and Southern Energy (SSE)) and Statoil (U.K.)

Limited, to create nine caverns which can store up to 420 million cubic metres of working gas will provide essential additional storage for the UK energy industry.

The site is located 2.5km south-east of Aldbrough and 1.5km inland from the coast. Once completed, the Aldbrough facility will be able to provide enough gas in a day to supply around four million homes.

The nine caverns will be created by directionally drilling from a Central Processing Area down to the salt strata. Seawater is then pumped into the boreholes to dissolve the salt and form the caverns - a process known as leaching. The process will take around four years to complete with the first cavern expected to be ready to store gas by 2007.

SCOTTISH AND SOUTHERN ENERGY PLC
FIRST TXU ADMINISTRATION DISTRIBUTION RECEIVED

Scottish and Southern Energy plc ("SSE") announced on 3 December 2004 that its subsidiary, SSE Energy Supply Ltd, had agreed a claim of £294.2m with the administrators of TXU Europe Group plc and certain of its subsidiaries in respect of a 14-year contract originally entered into in 1997.

It said that it expected that more than 75% of its agreed claim would be settled, subject to creditor approval of a company voluntary agreement (CVA), and that it was anticipated that the first distribution to creditors would be made on or around 31 March 2005, with other distributions being made in the autumn of 2005 and the spring of 2006.

The CVA was approved on 28 January 2005 and SSE has now received the first net distribution of £159.1m from the administrator.

SCOTTISH AND SOUTHERN ENERGY WIN £400 MILLION

'MOD' SOUTH EAST PRIME CONTRACT

A joint venture comprising Southern Electric Contracting, the subsidiary of Scottish and Southern Energy plc ("SSE"), and Interserve, has been awarded the Ministry of Defence's 'Prime' contract covering London and the south-east of England.

The contract, which was awarded by Defence Estates, the agency set up to manage the MoD's estate, is worth approximately £400 million over an initial seven years with an MoD option of a three-year extension. Operations will begin in April 2005.

South East Prime is one of five long-term contracts being rolled out across the UK by the MoD, which will employ prime contracting principles to procure the majority of its construction and maintenance services.

Ian Marchant, SSE's Chief Executive said: "I am very pleased that the work leading to the award of this contract has been completed.

This is a significant milestone in the ongoing development of SSE's Contracting business. The important thing now is to make a success of the contract."

SCOTTISH AND SOUTHERN ENERGY PLC SIX MILLION ENERGY SUPPLY CUSTOMERS

The energy supply business of Scottish and Southern Energy plc ("SSE") now has six million customers for the first time. SSE, which markets electricity and gas as Southern Electric, SWALEC, Scottish Hydro Electric and Atlantic, has gained almost 1.5 million customers since the start of 2002.

Ian Marchant, Chief Executive of SSE, said:

"I believe that our combination of best-in-class customer service and the value of our brands means we will continue to gain customers in the future. It also remains important, however, to maximise the value to be derived from the enlarged customer base which we have built up over the last three years. With that aim in mind, our new energy services unit has been set up to consolidate and market the services we provide to customers 'beyond the meter'."

SCOTTISH AND SOUTHERN ENERGY PLC SUPPORT FOR THE MOST VULNERABLE CUSTOMERS

Scottish and Southern Energy plc ("SSE") has announced the details of a new tariff and package of services for its most vulnerable customers which it will introduce later this year. The announcement was made during a presentation by SSE's Chief Executive, Ian Marchant, at an energy conference in London organised by Amicus today (1 March).

Qualifying customers will be offered:

- electricity and gas prices around 20 per cent lower than current market prices;
- a benefits health check, where appropriate;
- free energy efficiency measures such as loft and cavity wall insulation; and
- the loan of an A-rated fridge or fridge freezer if their existing one is inefficient.

These services will be offered to those customers with multiple problems - a low income that needs to be supported by particular benefits; special needs, such as a disability; and a home that has particularly poor energy efficiency.

Over the first three years, SSE expects up to 30,000 households might qualify for the new tariff and services. The combination of lower prices, energy efficiency measures and the installation of A-rated refrigeration equipment should enable a family living in a three bedroom semi-detached house to cut their total energy bills by around 30% or around £200 a year.

In addition to the new tariff and services, SSE is also intending to extend to customers who pay for their energy via Fuel Direct the same discount on their bills (6%) as those who pay via Direct Debit. (Fuel Direct is a means by which people in receipt of certain benefits such as income support can pay for their energy and is guaranteed by the Department of Work and Pensions.)

Ian Marchant said:

"While we do not believe that the energy supply industry is responsible for fuel poverty, we do believe that it is in the long-term interests of the industry to be seen to be making a real effort to play our part in dealing with the problem. There is now a universal understanding that the price of electricity and gas is just one of three factors which will determine if a household is going to fall into fuel poverty. The other factors are the income of the household and the energy efficiency rating of the property that the household occupies.

Tackling fuel poverty is in everyone's interests. So, in this climate of partnership, we want to play a constructive part, along with the government, other energy supply companies and the relevant agencies. That's why we have put together this package."

ELECTRICITY DIRECTORS RETIRE WITH 90 YEARS SERVICE

Scottish and Southern Energy plc ("SSE") announced on 29 July 2004 that Henry Casley, non-Executive Director, and David Sigsworth, Generation Director, intended to retire from the Board before the 2005 Annual General Meeting.

David Sigsworth will retire from the Board on 31 March 2005. He joined the electricity industry in 1962 and has been on the Board of SSE since it was formed in 1998. Henry Casley will retire on 17 May 2005. He joined the industry in 1961 and has also been on the Board since SSE was formed.

As stated in the 29 July announcement, SSE's Board will in future consist of four Executive Directors and five independent non-Executive Directors. Colin Hood, Chief Operating Officer, will assume Board-level responsibility for the operation of SSE's generation portfolio and will become Lead Director for the Environment.

Sir Robert Smith, Chairman of SSE, said: "With almost 90 years' service between them, Henry Casley and David Sigsworth have been outstanding servants of the UK's electricity industry. They were instrumental in the successful privatisations of Southern Electric and Scottish Hydro-Electric respectively and in the evolution of what were highly successful companies in their own right.

Henry and David have played highly significant parts in the successful merger of Southern Electric and Scottish Hydro-Electric to create SSE and in the subsequent development of the business. They have each brought to bear their wealth of experience and expertise and their contributions have been invaluable, and they are stepping down from the Board with our best wishes for the future."

NOTE TO EDITOR:-

When Henry Casley and David Sigsworth joined the electricity industry in the early 1960s, work was still going on to standardise voltages across the country after nationalisation in 1947. Another priority in the early 1960s was to complete the rural electrification programmes which were still connecting farms and other rural settlements to the electricity network.

Many electricity bills, especially for industrial and commercial customers, were still typed on old fashioned typewriters and carbon paper in the early 1960s. The industry's first use of computers for billing and computer centre was built around that time at Limewood Approach in Leeds, near where David Sigsworth started work for Yorkshire Electricity Board.

Cornishman Henry Casley's first job in the electricity industry was with the South Western Electricity Board (SWEB), which distributed electricity from Bristol down to Land's End. His final job in the industry has been with SSE, which distributes electricity up to John O'Groats.

SSE INFORMS CUSTOMERS OF ELECTRICITY AND GAS PRICE CHANGES

Scottish and Southern Energy has begun informing its domestic electricity and gas customers that its prices for energy will rise, either from 1 March 2005 or, for around 550,000 customers, from 1 July 2005. Across Great Britain, the average price rise for electricity customers will be 6.7% (3.7% in the north of Scotland) and the price rise for gas customers will be 9.1%.

SSE will hold its electricity prices at their revised level until at least January 2006 and will seek to do the same with gas prices. The position with gas prices is, however, dependent on trends in the wholesale gas market.

The increases for around 550,000 SSE customers who use pre-payment meters or are on the 'BudgetWarmth' and 'easywarm' tariffs will be delayed until 1 July 2005. They will also not apply to customers who signed up with SSE after 1 January 2005 or who sign up before 1 April 2005. Prices for these customers will remain at current levels until at least 1 July 2005.

The company last announced a change in domestic energy prices in June 2004 and while all the other major energy supply companies raised their prices two or three times during 2004, SSE made just one increase.

As part of a package of changes, SSE is extending to all customers its prompt payment discount of 3.5%, currently only available to around 50% of its customers. This means that they can reduce the price rise by 3.5% if they choose to pay promptly.

SSE's customers obtain a 6% discount on their unit charges for energy if they pay by direct debit. The company also offers 'tailor-made' payment arrangements to help customers in need, with around 200,000 households taking advantage of these arrangements during 2004.

Between 2005 and 2008 SSE expects to help around 250,000 'priority' households to lower their energy bills through the provision of free energy efficiency measures such as loft and cavity wall insulation. Its customers can obtain free energy efficiency advice by calling the company's 'energyline' on 0845 777 6633.

In addition, SSE has appointed a new Head of Priority Services with a brief to assemble a new package of measures to help the most vulnerable customers, including a special tariff designed to meet their needs. Details of this package will be set out at the Amicus conference on 1 March and the package itself will be made available later this year. In the meantime, customers who are over 60, who have disabilities or who suffer from long-term ill health can receive free services by registering with SSE's 'Careline' free on 0800 622 838. To date, almost 200,000 electricity and gas customers are on this register.

Ian Marchant, Chief Executive of SSE, said: "In line with our policy of adopting a responsible approach to pricing, we gave a commitment last summer to hold domestic energy prices at their current levels until at least early 2005. Since that commitment was made, every other energy supplier has increased prices - in some cases, twice.

"The impact of high wholesale energy prices" so long, and now is the point at which we have to increase prices. Nevertheless, I am pleased that we have been able to delay to July the increase for around 550,000 customers.

"Longer term, we will continue to adopt a measured and responsible approach to domestic energy pricing, while giving renewed focus to helping especially vulnerable customers. That's why we have given a commitment to hold electricity prices at their revised levels until at least January 2006."
